

The WKU Writing Project Presents

presents

a Spring Mini-Conference about

Are you looking for new ways to engage students in your content? Do you want to foster your students' critical thinking and cooperative learning skills? If so, then you should consider bringing Project-Based Learning into your classroom! Join us to learn more about this teaching method and how you can use it to deliver the content you are already teaching. This Project-Based Learning mini-conference is for teachers of all grade levels, content areas, and years of experience. We look forward to introducing you to a new way of presenting your content!

When: Tuesday, April 25th, 2017

Time: 4:15 - 7:15 registration opens at 4:00

Cost: $35 (Writing Project fellows attend free if bringing a paying guest)

Where: Drakes Creek Middle School, Bowling Green

Registration available online at www.wku.edu/wp

Contact Information:

WKU Writing Project Outreach Coordinators

Nicole.Jenkins@Warren.kyschools.us

Sara.Jennings@Russellville.kyschools.us