Program Summary (Briefly summarize the action and follow up items from your detailed responses on subsequent pages.)

Since producing this document, the faculty have worked to develop much more measurable learning outcomes. They will be effective in the next review cycles, and are as follows:

(Thinking Artist)

Analyze dance from historical, cultural, and aesthetical contexts and perspectives. Artifacts: Dance History/Dance in Culture, jazz dance research papers

Assessment: Beginning fall 2020, Dance History will be offered every other fall semester. In the odd years, comparable papers from Dance in Culture could be collected. Jazz courses are offered each semester. Every technique level of jazz follows the same written research assignment. Samples will be collected from juniors and seniors enrolled in a jazz dance technique course in the spring semester.

(Technique)

Demonstrate competency in dance technique; Achieve level four in one genre; level three in a second genre Artifacts: Course evaluation/movement exams, class registration Assessment: A student's class registration alone demonstrates achievement of level competency. Technique levels are guided by an established criterion that is published in the Dance Program Handbook, on the Department of Theatre & Dance website, and posted outside of Dance Studio A. Syllabi reference the technique criteria for level progression, and the degree program clearly states the levels that must be achieved in order to graduate with the BA in Dance.

The movement exams for each technique course are generally recorded digitally and archived by the professor. Evaluation forms are also completed by the professor. Samples will be pulled for review by faculty to ensure that competency is being demonstrated.

(Choreography)

Apply an understanding of choreographic principles to the creation and production of original choreographic work Artifacts: Videos of Choreography Finals/LCTD, Dance Project

Assessment: Choreography I and II present their final class projects in Last Chance to Dance, which is filmed and archived on the departmental shared drive. Junior and senior dance students present choreography in Dance Project, which is also filmed and archived on the shared drive. Samples of student choreography will be pulled for review by faculty.

Actions (Describe the decision-making process and actions planned for program improvement. The actions should include	e a timeline.)
The department faculty is pleased program with the results of this metric. The JPR process continues to be a central part of assessment and quality control. The department notes a rise in excellent rating for the spring 2019 semester, and attr successful emphasis on audition and interview preparation of seniors in the program.	1	1 0
Follow-Up (Provide your timeline for follow-up. If follow-up has occurred, describe how the actions above have resulted i	n program imp	rovement.)
While we are pleased with this metric, the Theatre & Dance department faculty have decided to substantially rework our Str and instruments going forward. We have developed more pertinent outcomes and more nuanced instruments for use be	C academic year. These new outcomes are better tailored to each degree program we offer and will provide better and more reliable data collection.

The department is pleased we achieved our target for the fall 2018 semester. The number of JPR participants dipped below 50% in the spring of 2019, however. This was not unexpected. The number participants each semester varies according to enrollment, cohort size, and progress through the degree. The spring semester JPR figure reflects a smaller than average senior cohort, and a larger than average sophomore cohort who were not required to participate in JPR. The department will continue to monitor these numbers and address issues of participation and student progress, should a trend emerge.

Follow-Up (Provide your timeline for follow-up. If follow-up has occurred, describe how the actions above have resulted in program improvement.) While the department feels the JPR process is a vitally important aspect of the program, the Theatre & Dance department faculty have decided to substantially rework our Student Learning Outcomes and instruments going forward. We have developed more pertinent outcomes and more nuanced instruments for use beginning in the 2020/2021 academic year. These new outcomes are better tailored to each degree program we offer and will provide better and more reliable data collection.

Actions (Describe the decision-making process and actions planned for program improvement. The actions should include a timeline.) The department has shifted its focus in recent years on creating work which challenges our students to expand their cultural understanding, and to explore a variety of ideas, values experiences, people, and cultures. As a result, students are enjoying more and more opportunities for applied learning experiences in such works. The department will consider resetting this target to a higher point for the coming year.
