WKU XPOSURE 2018 HIGH SCHOOL JOURNALISM WORKSHOP

JUNE 9-17, 2018

AT WESTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY

High school students from throughout Kentucky and the region have come to learn and practice journalism at Western Kentucky University's Xposure Journalism Workshop, now in its 35th year.

Students who participate in Xposure show an interest in journalism and come to the workshops from a variety of backgrounds, including those under-represented in U.S. newsrooms. The 12 students selected for the Xposure stay on campus, and work in the state-of-the-art newsroom of the award-winning College Heights Herald and WKUHerald.com, Talisman Magazine and WKUTalisman.com.

There is no cost to students attending, as the workshop is funded through grants from Xposure alumni, WKU's School of Journalism & Broadcasting, Office of the Provost and Student Publications, as well as news organizations throughout the region.

Alumni of WKU's Xposure workshops fill newsrooms throughout the country, from Washington to Florida to New York and places in between. They help ensure that news gatherers at media outlets mirror the diverse communities they serve.

For more information, contact Chuck Clark, workshop director, at Chuck.Clark@wku.edu, or Bob Adams, co-director, at Robert.Adams@wku.edu.

Registration deadline: Friday, April 26, 2018

Apply on reverse, or AFTER FEB. 1, 2018, at www.wku.edu/journalism/documents/xposure_application.pdf
